Abstract

The David Naylor Collection contains photographic slides, photographic prints, negatives, material related to the work of David Naylor, and one videotape (VHS). The photographic images were taken by David Naylor detailing the interiors and exteriors of theatres and a few buildings in Australia. The collection mainly depicts theatres in most regions of the United States (U.S.) and various materials about him.

Background Information

David Naylor was born in 1955 in Tupelo, Mississippi. He grew up in Pittsburg, West Virginia, and various other places along the eastern side of the U.S. David Naylor graduated from Amherst College in 1977. He received a master's in history of architecture from Cornell University (1990). He attended University of Washington (1985-87) and the University of Virginia (1993). He later went to the University of Queensland in Australia to join their Ph.D. program, where he was also a tutorial assistant and lecturer. His passion was architecture. The buildings he loved most were movie palaces and railroad stations. He travelled across the country to photograph these buildings. David Naylor prided himself on personally taking most of the photos used in his books. David Naylor died February 22, 2013 in Del Ray Beach, Florida.

David Naylor was a member of Theatre Historical Society of America and a member of the Thomas R. DuBuque Research Fellowship Committee. He wrote three books on movie palaces American Picture Palaces: The Architecture of the Future (1981), Great American Movie Theaters (1987), and American Theaters: Performance Palaces of the Nineteenth Century (1997). He also wrote various articles on movie palaces throughout the years. His other titles include Railroad Station: The Buildings That Linked the Nation (2011), and Trash Backwards: Innovating Our Way to Zero Waste (2012). He co-wrote The Fabulous Fox / produced by Mary Strauss; directed by David Naylor and an all-star cast (1985). He was the primary consultant for the film The Movie Palaces produced by the Smithsonian Institution. He has also lectured on architecture and theater design for various organizations, for an example, Society of Architectural Historians and the Renwick Museum in Washington D.C.

Scope and Contents Note

The collection is primarily photographs, transparencies, and negatives of United States theatres. The materials are organized by type and then arranged geographically by state/region (for example, WI-Milwaukee-Oriental). However, some of the materials have descriptions but lack the theater name and/or location.
